

ABSTRACT

A slimming club is simulated so a person can visit a virtual slimming club via the Internet and can have his or her weight-related data reviewed automatically by a central computer system and will receive communication via any convenient method, including the Internet, telephone, fax, or the like.